Sandy Scofield is a Métis (Cree, Sauteaux, French) songwriter based in Vancouver. It has been several years since she has released any new material due to the need for a reprieve from her life long passion after an unprecedented period of major touring culminating in the opening of the 2010 Winter Olympics for which she composed the Indigenous Welcoming Song. A multi-award winning composer, sound designer, educator and performer, Scofield has toured to several global locations and is a regular on the local and national music scenes. Red Earth constitutes her fifth studio album and features Kinnie Starr, Tantoo Cardinal and Digging Roots' Raven Kanataktá.
